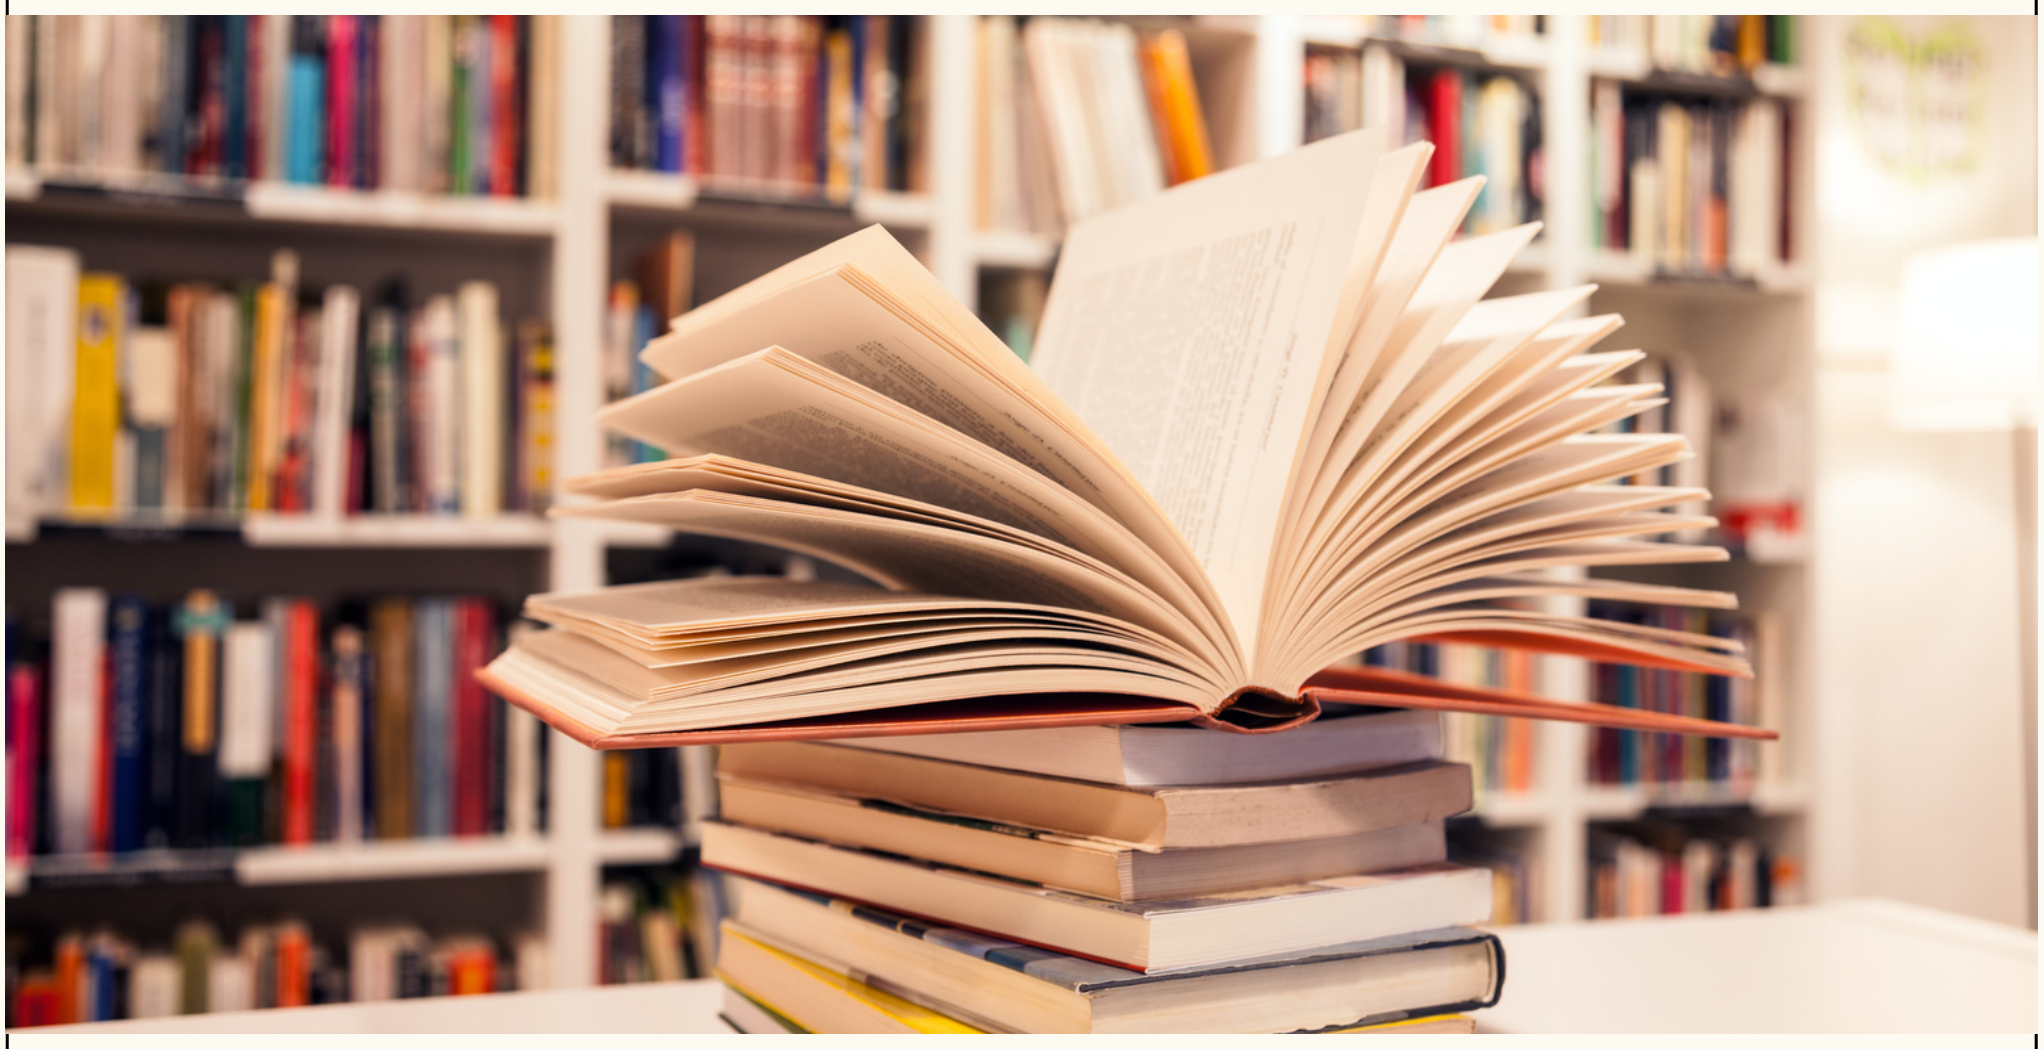
Case Study



FINDING HÓZHÓ IN HEALTH CARE

BY SHANELL YENCHIK

PROBLEM

The disconnection between western medicine and Navajo beliefs.

APPROACH

The author researched using literature review, and a mind map to begin questioning interconnectedness.
The approach highlights the interconnected nature of people and health - they cannot be separated and for traditional beliefs the whole picture can be more helpful for patients.

OUTCOMES

The author then used this information to write the paper & also to write a children's storybook.
The storybook is the outcome of the research and highlighting interconnectedness. The book highlighted the significance, and examples of combining traditional care and traditional Navajo healing methods.

READ THE ORIGINAL PAPER HERE